PETE RSON PRIZE COLLOQUIUM
MARCH 24, 2010
LOUIS J. KRUGER, PSY.D. (GSAPP 1986)
“HIGH STAKES TESTING, SOCIAL JUSTICE, AND PROFESSIONAL PSYCHOLOGY”

In my colloquium, I will trace how my professional and scientific training at GSAPP prepared me for my life as professor, filmmaker, and social activist. In particular, I will focus on my recent experience in producing and directing a documentary entitled “Children Left Behind.” The film explores the well-intended purposes and the unintended consequences of high school exit exams. Twenty-five states, including New Jersey, require high school students to take and pass a series of these exams in order to receive a diploma. Although the controversy about these exams illuminates many of the dilemmas confronting public education, the high stakes testing movement also raises important questions about our values, how we should evaluate public policies, and the role of psychologists in advocating for social justice.

The Eagleton Institute of Politics offers interdisciplinary fellowships that provide select Rutgers graduate students the opportunity to further their understanding of the practice of politics, government, and public affairs while connecting the fellowship experience to their chosen fields of study. Eagleton has offered these prestigious fellowships since 1956.

Why apply?
- Earn a stipend (some with tuition remission) while enjoying an insider’s exposure to politics
- Learn from your peers in a program open to graduate students in any school or department on the New Brunswick, Camden or Newark campus
- Complete a one-year certificate program while working toward your graduate degree without interruption
- Take part in engaging discussions about politics and government in small weekly seminars in an informal setting
- Join a highly selective program with a wide variety of placement options
- Gain direct access to practitioners and a network of more than 1,500 Eagleton alumni in state and national politics and government
- Hold the fellowship at any point during your graduate studies at Rutgers
- Receive career counseling and job placement assistance

APPLICATION DEADLINE MARCH 22, 2010

JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Instructor for Advanced School Psychology Supervision course at GSAPP needed for Fall 2010-Spring 2011. This course provides group supervision for second and third year school psychology students in practicum placements. In addition to providing group supervision related to student practicum activities in school placements, the course provides education and training in the process of supervision. If you are interested, please send a note indicating your interest and your vita to Susan Forman, Chair, Department of Applied Psychology, sgforman@rci.rutgers.edu. Please note that licensure as a psychologist and certification as a school psychologist are important credentials for this position.

Exciting opportunity to join the nation's largest full service school health program! The Children's Hospital at Montefiore Medical Center/Albert Einstein College of Medicine has an opening for a full time psychologist to work on a multi-disciplinary team. The position involves clinical intakes, parent work, collaboration/consultation with school staff, and evidence-based individual, family and group therapies and prevention in a school-based (elementary school) clinic. Position begins as soon as an appropriate candidate is found. Qualified candidates will have a doctoral degree in psychology. Fluency in Spanish is highly desirable. Please fax or e-mail cover letter and curriculum vitae to Alec Miller, Psy. D., Chief, Child and Adolescent Psychology, Montefiore Medical Center, 111 East 210th Street, Bronx, New York, 10467, fax 718-405-5953, email: aleclmiller@msn.com
