The Phyllis Green and Randolph Cowen Institute for Pediatric Neuroscience at the NYU Child Study Center is looking for a clinician to conduct research diagnostic evaluations using the Autism Diagnostic Interview-Revised (ADI-R) and/or Autism Diagnostic Observation Schedule (ADOS) for toddlers, school-age children, and adults participating in neuroimaging studies of autism spectrum disorders. Responsibilities include: Generating written diagnostic reports, supervising trainees (graduate students, research assistants), The candidate should have good interpersonal, organizational, and communication skills. Experience with children or adults with autism is required. Previous training in the clinical and research administration of the ADI-R or the ADOS is preferred. Eligible applicants should have a degree in social work, clinical psychology, or related field. Post-graduate clinical psychology graduates can receive supervision towards licensure. For more information, please contact Rebecca Grzadinski at Rebecca.grzadzinski@nyumc.org and Adriana DiMartino, MD at dimara01@nyumc.org. Please attach a resume or CV, including the names of three references, to your inquiry.
The Clinical psychology Doctoral Program at LIU/CW Post Campus invited applications for a tenure-track position to begin September 2010. Our APA–accredited program leading to the PsyD degree adheres to the practitioner-scholar model. The program provides its students with clinical and theoretical training in cognitive-behavioral and psychoanalytic orientations. The successful candidate will be expected to initiate or maintain an active, externally-funded research program and to contribute to graduate education.

Responsibilities will include teaching courses at the doctoral level, supervision of dissertations, mentoring of students, and clinical supervision of student therapists in our on-site training clinic. For more information on the program, see: http://www.cwpost.liu.edu/cwis/cwp/clas/psych/doctoral/

Pending budgetary approval, review of applications will begin October 15th, 2009 and continue until the position is filled. Applicants should include a curriculum vitae and a letter of application with a statement of research, teaching, and clinical interests. Send by post, three letters of recommendation and reprints, to Clinical Psychology Doctoral Program, Long Island University-C.W. Post Campus, 720 Northern Blvd, Brookville, NY 11548.

The program is aggressively recruiting ethnic minority and female applicants to bring greater diversity to its workforce. Long Island University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.
