DEAN'S CORNER

Milt Schwebel, now in "retirement" in Arizona, was a faculty member at GSAPP for many years after serving as dean at the Graduate School of Education. He is an extraordinary example of a man with a strong sense of social justice and morality, who is caring and compassionate and a prolific scholar. Milt has had a lifelong interest in the elusive concept of peace among nations. He and I have kept in touch since he left the area to be closer to his family (where they could keep an eye on him). I thought that it would serve as an inspiration to us all to have him send greetings through the Gazette, providing an example of how one can spend one's time enjoyably and fruitfully upon retirement. And, oh yes, did I tell you that he is in his 90's?

Here are some of Milt's latest publications, followed by his letter:

To my former colleagues (at Stan's kind invitation),

This note is to assure you that life in the post post-retirement years can still be satisfying, even in this southwestern desert. Having been born and grown up within a few blocks of the Hudson river in upstate N.Y., and lived within a short ride to the beaches, first of LI, then of N.J., I feared I would miss the sight of water. Here, however, I'm surrounded by majestic mountains, and refreshed by the sight of colorful desert flowers. My life is comfortable in my own little house, forming a compound combined with pool and garden and the home and office of my psychologist son, Bob, and his wife, Claudia.

I work out in a gym, eat dinner with my son and family, have drinks every few weeks with a set of neighbors (one of them also a WWII vet), walk in the parks, attend the annual Peace Festival and assorted concerts, shop at Trader Joe, frequent the library, and often read and sip cappuccino at the nearby Barnes & Noble.

My interests, writings and lectures are inspired less by Piaget and Vygotsky, Freud, Skinner and Rogers, than by William James who, with Mark Twain, formed the Anti-Imperialist League of America and who declared “God damn the United States for its vicious behavior in the Philippines.” I like to think he would have been pleased to know that Obama was president (though with concern about his Afghan policy), and by the emergence of women in psychology. How much Kenneth Clark, who in his late years told me all his efforts seemed to have been in vain, would have been pleased.

The economic crisis is all too familiar: I was in college when FDR was elected. We are yet to see the major reverberations in the lives of clients, or in the economics of professional psychology—or am I out of touch already?

I try to live by a principle very much inspired by my late wife: Live life to the full, enjoying every day.

Milt.
The GSAPP Alumni Organization and the GSAPP Dean’s Office invite you to a:

JOB OPPORTUNITY

The New Jersey Office of the Public Defender seeks full-time and part-time individuals to work as Life Skills Advocates in our Community Assistance Program. Positions are available beginning in June 2009 in Public Defender offices throughout New Jersey.

Life Skill Advocates work directly with our attorneys and help Public Defender clients to access substance abuse and mental health treatment, jobs, education, child care and housing. With this assistance, our juvenile and adult clients can turn their lives around and get a fresh start in life. By helping Public Defender clients to link, identify and access appropriate services you can increase their chance of success and reduce the likelihood of incarceration and recidivism.

If you are interested in applying to be a Life Skills Advocate in the New Jersey Office of the Public Defender’s Community Assistance Program, please send a cover letter and resume to:

Larry Bembry, Program Manager, Community Assistance Program
New Jersey Office of the public Defender
P.O. Box 850
Trenton, N.J. 08625-0850
(609) 292-9350 (phone)  (609) 777-1864 (fax)
Larry.Bembry@opd.state.nj.us (email address)

Funding is through the federal AmeriCorps program. Each individual receives an annual living allowance of $11,400 for full-time work and an educational grant of $4,725 for each year of their service. Part-time positions are also available for a reduced living allowance and educational grant.

We seek enthusiastic, creative and highly committed individuals with knowledge of community based organizations, public agencies and excellent communication and interpersonal skills. You must have a strong desire to help others in the community and work well independently.

Please visit our website at www.thedefenders.nj.gov

CORRECTION

The GSAPP Gazette Issue 27, dated April 1, 2009, had Julie Henderson listed as a school psychology student. She is in fact an Organizational Psychology student. My apologies to Julie and to the readers of the column which appeared on page 2 under the Dean’s Corner.
